

Highlights:

- The relationship between the diode ideality factor and the iron concentration in the base layer of silicon $n^+ - p$ solar cell has been studied via computer simulation
- The algorithms of iron concentration evaluation in silicon solar cell by using a current–voltage curve are proposed
- The analytic expressions are suggested as well as calibration curves are calculated