

Highlights:

- Ultrasound loading leads to reversible degradation of the silicon solar cells
- Acoustically induced change of the current-voltage characteristics is determined by lattice atom displacement
- Degradation is caused by the acoustically induced increase in the carrier capture coefficient for point and extended defects